When I first started using it was really sporadic. My grandfather's death later that same year, when I was thirteen, kind of triggered up more emotions that I kind of wanted to run from. I tried to use on the regular basis as much as possible. If I had to steal alcohol from my parents, I would do that. I would try to cop as much marijuana as I could from friends. It was just more difficult in middle school than it was in high school to get drugs, but, I mean, it was on a regular basis, as much as possible.
